Models and Practices of Student Support

Using multiple case studies, students will be presented with core ideas and strategic models in inclusion and student support across academic, social, emotional, behavioral and spiritual domains. The benefits of a positive psychology focus and its consistency with Jewish beliefs will be discussed as a grounded theory approach to student support.

Applied Qualitative Research Methods OR Applied Quantitative Research Methods

Students choose either qualitative or quantitative methods depending on the likely direction of their dissertation. These classes are designed to prepare students for their dissertation work by familiarizing them with the actual practice of research planning, data collection, and analysis.
