

YAIR

Yeshiva Academic Institutional Repository

Where academic and creative work reside

FACULTY PUBLICATIONS

Interested in sharing your academic output with scholars throughout the globe?

Simply send your work (PDF files, images, charts) to Stephanie Gross, Scholarly Communication Librarian, gross@yu.edu

Other materials of interest:

- Journal articles
- Book Chapters
- Videos of events
- Podcasts
- Course Syllabi
- Learning Objects
- Data sets

STUDENT PUBLICATIONS

Whether or not your club publishes your journal in print or would like to be hybrid, YAIR is your destination for sharing your work with a global community. All work is copyright protected via Creative Commons license.

Examples of student publications in YAIR:

- The YU Commentator
- The YU Observer
- Women in Science
- Derech HaTeva
- Kronos
- The Fine Arts Journal
- Prism
- Chavrusa
- The Clarion
- Speech Pathology and Audiology Journal

Having articles posted on YAIR ensures not only their timely visibility, it also provides a permanent home for them. I am very grateful to have this repository available for faculty use.

– Professor Daniel Pollack, J.D.,
Wurzweiler School of Social Work

Self-archive your thesis or dissertation

Both undergraduate and graduate students are encouraged to share their thesis (honors, master's, or capstone project) to the Yeshiva University institutional repository.

Students should sign a consent form indicating the appropriate level of visibility, e.g., Open Access, 2-year embargo, or YU only.

Send a PDF file to: gross@yu.edu

Doctoral Students: Kindly consult with your advisor and follow the protocols as set by your department. The library will file your dissertation to ProQuest Dissertations and Theses Global for you as well as post your dissertation to YAIR.

YAIR is an open-access service & is globally discoverable.

For further information, please refer to the guide:
<https://library.yu.edu/RepositoryGuide>

